HOOVER TO ANSWER SMITH CHARGE

CHARGE OF G. O. P.
ECONOMY "MYTH"
BIG CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Hoover Completing
Speech For New York
Next Monday Night

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—In his New York address Monday night, Herbert Hoover is expected to reply to the charge of his Democratic opponent, Governor Alfred E. Smith, that Republican economy in the Coolidge administration is a "myth."

This had become today, suddenly, the outstanding issue of the campaign. The Democratic presidential candidate, in his Sedalia, Mo., speech, stirred up a veritable hornet's nest. Republican leaders at once jumped into the controversy. A few hours after Smith's words went to the country over the radio, Chairman Work of the Republican national committee gave out a statement taking issue with him, denying his charge, and characterizing the Democratic candidate, sarcastically, "by his own admission the greatest financial expert New York state has ever had."

Then Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who usually lets political controversies rage about him unnoticed, issued an eight-page statement, in which he went into detail to refute Smith's charges. Mellon took the attack upon him personally. Smith, he said, "undertook to challenge my good faith and to accuse me of presenting a false picture to the nation."

Hoover is expected to bring the controversy to its climax in his New York speech by a careful analysis of the administration's financial record, but as usual, without mentioning the Democratic presidential candidate by name. The implication will be sufficient in Smith's own state. Smith criticized Hoover by name in his Sedalia speech.

Hoover was completing his New York address today. It will be a highlight in his campaign. At the same time, the Republican candidate is arranging details of his trip to California. It appears very probable now that he will make the one formal radio address on his way west, at St. Louis, in the border state battleground of Missouri, instead of in the northwest. The date for the speech has been fixed tentatively for Nov. 2.

Statements of denial were issued here today against two charges brought against Hoover, one questioning his American citizenship, and another that he had held down the price of the 1919 wheat crop, the latter being used in the campaign among the farmers against him.

"BIG BILL" THOMPSON STARTS ECONOMY IN EFFORT TO CUT COST

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Like the housewife who has spent so much for summer frocks that she foresees trouble meeting the winter coal bills, Chicago, is going through the pains of making a reduction of $4,000,000 in its expenditures between now and the first of the year.

The administration of Mayor William Hale Thompson, which started out to be the most expensive in Chicago's history, has inaugurated in the closing months of 1928 the most rigid economy campaign the city has ever known.

"Big Bill the Builder," the mayor called himself when he was running for office. Under his guidance the second city of the United States was destined to break out with a rash of public improvements.

Today the garbage man doesn't come around so often and even after pruning $4,000,000 off of disbursements between now and January 1, Chicago will wind up the fiscal year with a deficit of $1,500,000. The corporate appropriation for the year was $53,000,000.

Bishop Brewster of Maine opposed saying this would hamper the church "when great moral legislation such as the child labor law was up before the country."

EX-BOROUGH HEAD SENTENCED IN EAST SEWER GRAFT TRIAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Maurice E. Connolly and Frederick Seely, defendants in the $30,000,000 Queens sewer graft trial, were convicted today of conspiring to defraud the taxpayers of Queens Borough.

The jury had been out more than twenty-five hours.

Connolly was given the maximum sentence—a year's imprisonment and a $500 fine. Sentence was deferred on Seely, pending argument of a motion to set aside the conviction.

Connolly, who for fourteen years was president of the Long Island Borough and Seely, his chief engineer in the Queens sewer bureau, were charged with forming a triumvirate with John M. "Gentleman Jack" Phillips, sewer pipe king, to control the awarding of all sewer contracts in the borough.

Phillips, who died before the trial opened, had made huge fortunes from the contracts, and Connolly and Seely were accused of receiving a "split."

The state charged that Connolly, Seely and Phillips had controlled the awarding of Queens sewer contracts since 1919. During that time the borough built more than $29,500,000 worth of sewers, more than $8,000,000 of which the state charged was grafted.

BENDER CHARGES LORAIN OFFICERS "HUSH UP" CASES

Government League To
Take Up Heywood
Case, Senator Says

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—Charges that Lorain officials are inclined to "hush up" the cases of three dry agents involved in the shooting of Miss Betty Heywood, of Elyria, were made here today by State Senator George H. Bender.

Following a conference with Miss Heywood and members of her family, here, Bender announced that the Constitutional Government League, of which he is president, would actively interest itself in the prosecution of the agents.

Bender said arrangements had been made to retain Gay O. Faguhar, Cleveland, attorney, to represent Miss Heywood's interests. He indicated personal injury suit would be filed against the raiders.

"Miss Heywood is not pleased with the manner in which Lorain officials are conducting the prosecution of this case," said Bender. "She believes they are inclined to hush up the matter rather than to come out openly and punish the guilty."

Bender said the young woman's eyesight had been affected as a result of the wound sustained on the night of September 25 when the auto in which she and her parents were riding was fired upon.

Trial of Louis Cicco, one agent, who was indicted by the Lorain County grand jury on charges of shooting to wound, was scheduled to open tomorrow.

The grand jury will meet October 24 to consider the cases of the other two.

GASOLINE TANK OF AMUNDSEN FLIGHT FOUND BY SEAMEN

Part Of Seaplane Which
June; Crew Lost

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 18.—The Norwegian motor boat Leif arrived this morning at Valdersund and reported she had picked up the gasoline tank of the Latham seaplane in which Roald Amundsen and five others started on a flight to the Arctic in June.

The tank contained thirty litres of gasoline, the commander of the motor boat reported.

The motor boat was positive that the tank was that of the French seaplane as inscribed on one side of the tank were the words:

"Essence Competence, 600 litres, Hydro-Avian, Latham."

The tank was found at 64 degrees and 52 minutes north and 8 degrees 50 minutes east longitude.

Captain H. Risler Larsen, Norwegian explorer who spent many weeks in the Arctic this year searching for the Arctic, said the finding proved without a doubt that the Latham seaplane had been forced to land at sea.

The tank apparently had drifted some distance when it was found as the position mentioned would have been well off the course that Amundsen was expected to take as he started out on his mercy mission to the rescue of members of the dirigible Italia.

Amundsen with five companions, left Tromsø, Norway, June 18, bound either for Bear Island or Kings Bay.

So far as is known their plane never was seen after late in the evening of June 18. There have been many reports of finding traces of the craft but all were unconfirmed until a few weeks ago part of the pontoons were found floating in Arctic waters.

The plane was last sighted near Egg Harbor, Wis., fifteen miles north of Sturgeon Bay. Mitchell is then believed to have turned west across Green Bay, a fifteen mile over water jump.

Coast guardsman plan to search Green Bay and Green Island later today when calmer weather is expected.

H. C. MAC DONALD, U. S. NAVY OFFICER IN DARING FLIGHT

Moth Plane Expected To
Land In Ireland Late
Thursday.

(BULLETIN)

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Grave anxiety was felt this afternoon for the safety of Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald, Royal Navy, retired, who left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, at 11:40 a. m. E. S. T. yesterday on an attempt to fly across the Atlantic to Ireland or England.

At 3:40 p. m. (10:40 a. m. E. S. T.) Commander MacDonald had been gone from Harbor Grace twenty-three hours, and no word had been received of his whereabouts.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Commander H. C. MacDonald, the reticent naval officer who started alone in a tiny plane on a trans-Atlantic flight yesterday, fought against great odds this morning if his DeHavilland Gypsy Moth plane remained in the air.

At 5:40 a. m. he had been in the air eighteen hours—the time schedule he had set to complete the flight before he left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, yesterday.

And from mid-Atlantic to the Irish coast, and even through most of the mainland of the British Isles this morning there were reports of high winds, rain and poor visibility.

ST. JOHN'S NEWFOUNDLAND, Oct. 18.—For a thrill, which capture by cannibalistic Africans and war time submarine service had failed to provide, Commander H. C. MacDonald risked his life in a daring attempt at a trans-Atlantic crossing.

The former British naval officer started—without any great advance publicity—from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, at 11:40 a. m. (EST) yesterday, hoping to land in England within eighteen hours.

So unostentatious was the start that many believed he was just taking his eighty-five horse power DeHavilland Moth up for an air jaunt.

He has a narrow margin. The plane is fueled for twenty hours. The course he is believed following is the same that Alcock and Brown used in 1919 when they crossed in sixteen hours.

It is the most daring trans-Atlantic flight ever attempted and made by a man whose air experience is almost negligible as compared with the other illustrious flyers who have attempted over seas flights.

A year ago MacDonald started flying. He made a long distance tour in a Moth down into Africa and there was captured by natives, rescue coming just when the cannibalistic natives had decided to kill him.

That had not given him the thrill (Continued on Page Eight)

"There has never been and never will be a moral issue in which the old Presbyterian church will not enlist itself. The church does not introduce these issues, it merely attacks them."

A few minutes later the two left the warden's office and went to see Hickman in his cell in condemned row.

Walsh's visit to San Quentin was for the announced purpose of seeking appointment of a sanity commission to examine Hickman, who is awaiting execution Friday morning for the murder of Marion Parker.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—Richard Cantillon, attorney for William Edward Hickman, arrived here today from Los Angeles for the last fight to save Hickman from the gallows.

Cantillon brought with him a new affidavit dealing with the question of Hickman's insanity.

The affidavit was signed by Dr. C. W. MacFall, psychiatrist of the University of Virginia, who examined Hickman fourteen times in the county hall at Los Angeles and later in San Quentin Prison.

In the affidavit Dr. MacFall expressed the opinion that Hickman was insane at the time he kidnapped and murdered Marion Parker and that he still is insane.

BENDER CHARGES LORAIN OFFICERS "HUSH UP" CASES

Government League To
Take Up Heywood
Case, Senator Says

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 18.—Charges that Lorain officials are inclined to "hush up" the cases of three dry agents involved in the shooting of Miss Betty Heywood, of Elyria, were made here today by Sen. Senator George H. Bender.

Following a conference with Miss Heywood and members of her family, here, Bender announced that the Constitutional Government League, of which he is president, would actively interest itself in the prosecution of the agents.

Bender said arrangements had been made to retain Guy O. Farguharson, Cleveland, attorney, to represent Miss Heywood's interests. He indicated personal injury suit would be filed against the raiders.

Miss Heywood is not pleased with the manner in which Lorain officials are conducting the prosecution of this case, said Bender.

"She believes they are inclined to hush up the matter rather than to come out openly and punish the guilty."

Bender said the young woman's eyesight had been affected as a result of the wound sustained on the night of September 26 when the auto in which she and her parents were riding was fired upon.

Trial of Louis Cleco, one agent, who was indicted by the Lorain County grand jury on charges of shooting to wound, was scheduled to open tomorrow.

The grand jury will meet October 24 to consider the cases of the other two.

GASOLINE TANK OF AMUNDSEN FLIGHT FOUND BY SEAMEN

Part Of Seaplane Which
June; Crew Lost

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 18.—The Norwegian motor boat left arrived this morning at Valdersund and reported she had picked up the gasoline tank of the Latham seaplane in which Roald Amundsen and five others started on a flight to the Arctic in June.

The tank contained thirty litres of gasoline, the commander of the motor boat reported.

The motor boat was positive that the tank was that of the French seaplane as inscribed on one side of the tank were the words: "Essence Compagnie, 600 litres, Hydro-Avian, Latham."

The tank was found at 64 degrees and 52 minutes north and 8 degrees 50 minutes east longitude. Captain H. Risler Larsen, Norwegian explorer who spent many weeks in the Arctic this year searching for the Italia party said the find proved without a doubt that the Latham seaplane had been forced to land at sea.

The tank apparently had drifted some distance when it was found as the position mentioned would have been well off the course that Amundsen was expected to take as he started out on his mercy mission to the rescue of members of the dirigible Italia.

Amundsen with five companions left Tromsø, Norway, June 18, bound either for Bear Island or Kings Bay.

So far as is known their plane never was seen after late in the evening of June 18. There have been many reports of finding traces of the craft but all were unconfirmed until a few weeks ago part of the pontoons were found floating in Arctic waters.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF YOUNG PILOT, WIFE

MENOMINEE, Mich., Oct. 18.—Coast guard crews today feared for the safety of Thomas Mitchell, 27-year-old pilot and his wife who started on a flight from Sturgeon Bay, Wis., to this city yesterday afternoon.

The plane was last sighted near Egg Harbor, Wis., fifteen miles north of Sturgeon Bay. Mitchell is then believed to have turned west across Green Bay, a fifteen mile over water jump.

Green Island, less than 100 acres of ground on the way from Egg Harbor to this city was regarded as the only haven of safety if the plane was forced down.

Coast guardsmen plan to search Green Bay and Green Island later today when calmer weather is expected.

DUCK HUNTER'S BODY FOUND IN LAKE ERIE

PORT CLINTON, O., Oct. 18.—The body of Eugene Rompf, 45, of Toledo, was found floating in Lake Erie two miles from West Sister Island, near Niagara Reef, today by coast guards.

Discovery of the body was a result of a ten day search of the lake following the disappearance of Rompf and Homer C. Stuber, 36, also of Toledo, who set out from Oak Harbor the morning of Oct. 6 in a small boat to hunt ducks in the Lake Erie swamps.

H. C. MAC DONALD, U. S. NAVY OFFICER IN DARING FLIGHT

Moth Plane Expected To
Land In Ireland Late
Thursday.

(BULLETIN)

LONDON, Oct. 18.—"Grave anxiety was felt this afternoon for the safety of Lieut. Commander H. C. MacDonald, Royal Navy, retired, who left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, at 11:40 a. m. E. S. T. yesterday on an attempt to fly across the Atlantic to Ireland or England.

At 3:40 p. m. (10:40 a. m. E. S. T.) Commander MacDonald had been gone from Harbor Grace twenty-three hours, and no word had been received of his whereabouts.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Commander H. C. MacDonald, the reticent naval officer who started alone in a tiny plane on a trans-Atlantic flight yesterday, fought against great odds this morning if his DeHavilland Gypsy Moth plane remained in the air.

At 5:40 a. m. he had been in the air eighteen hours—the time schedule he had set to complete the flight before he left Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, yesterday.

And from mid-Atlantic to the Irish coast, and even through most of the mainland of the British Isles this morning there were reports of high winds, rain and poor visibility.

ST. JOHN'S NEWFOUNDLAND, Oct. 18.—For a thrill, which capture by cannibalistic Africans and war time submarine service had failed to provide, Commander H. C. MacDonald risked his life in a daring attempt at a trans-Atlantic crossing.

The former British naval officer started—without any great advance publicity—from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, at 11:40 a. m. (EST) yesterday, hoping to land in England within eighteen hours.

So unostentatious was the start that many believed he was just taking his eighty-five horse power DeLavilland Moth up for an air jaunt.

He has a narrow margin. The plane is fueled for twenty hours. The course he is believed following is the same that Alcock and Brown used in 1919 when they crossed in sixteen hours.

It is the most daring trans-Atlantic flight ever attempted and made by a man whose air experience is almost negligible as compared with the other illustrious flyers who have attempted "over-seas" flights.

A year-ago MacDonald started flying. He made a long distance tour in a Moth down into Africa and there was captured by natives, rescue coming just when the cannibalistic natives had decided to kill him.

That had not given him the thrill

MODERATOR URGES PRESBYTERIAN VOTE FOR DRY CANDIDATE

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 18.—Dr. Hugh Kelso Walker, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, speaking before a congregation of 300 persons here last night, said his church "condemned intoxicating beverages in any form" and that the church "was opposed to wet candidates on moral grounds."

Dr. Walker refrained from mentioning names and said "we are standing foursquare in urging our people to vote for retention of the eighteen year amendment. We are the church in politics," he said. "We merely take this measure to defend a moral principle."

"There has never been and never will be a moral issue in which the old Presbyterian church will not enlist itself. The church does not introduce these issues, it merely attacks them."

TALK ON BRITANNY

The quaint, fascinating old worldliness of Brittany was interestingly described by Miss Margaret Steele to members of Catharine Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, who met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Weaver, E. Church St.

Miss Steele talked from personal experiences and impressions obtained during a nine days visit to that section of France last September. The trip was made with a party of girls.

"Brittany," said Miss Steele, "while the least visited by tourists, is the most fascinating and beautiful part of France. Four-fifths surrounded by water, the climate is semi-tropical, and the vegetation accordingly profuse and beautiful," she said. The extraordinary beauty of the women, she ascribed to their ancestry, the early Britons who settled on that coast of France.

Two types of the headresses of the women of Brittany, some specimens of the lace made by them, photographs, baskets and china-ware, souvenirs of her trip, were exhibited by Miss Steele. The brilliant colors of the sails of the fishing fleets off the Brittany coast, Miss Steele described as making a picture of great beauty.

A vote of thanks for her entertaining talk was given Miss Steele by the chapter.

Assisting Mrs. Weaver as hostesses were: Mrs. S. O. Hale, Mrs. Eber Reynolds, and Mrs. J. A. Chew.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A BLESSED ASSURANCE—Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee, —Isa. 26:3.

ELECTING A PRESIDENT

It seems wrong to many people that the awkward and antiquated system of an electoral college should be used in electing candidates for president and vice-president. It is argued that the people should vote directly for these officials, and that the one having the greatest number of popular votes should win, the same as on most contests.

It may happen, as it has happened before, that the candidate who gets the majority of the popular vote may not get a majority of the electoral vote. A candidate might get a very heavy majority in the number of states, so that he had a majority of the total popular vote in the country, while his opponent might carry many more states by close votes in most cases. In such an instance the candidate who had the less number of popular votes might win the greater number of electoral votes and become president.

The electoral college system was created out of the feeling of the founders of our government, that we should get better presidents if we allowed a small group of able delegates to elect them for us. So the electors were chosen originally with the idea that they would exercise their own independent judgment.

In time the people desired to dictate these choices, and the political parties began to name candidates for whom the electors were pledged to vote. For many years they have invariably voted for the candidates thus named, and it would be considered a gross breach of trust if they failed to do so.

The system may not work wholly well, but it has advantages. If we voted by popular vote, frauds in some states might swell the total of certain candidates far above what they would be entitled to. But under the electoral system, such candidates would get no more votes in the electoral college. The system created by the fathers works pretty well, and it should not be lightly changed.

"HER MAN'S JOB"

There are more women who wonder whether their man's job is safe and if he will have steady work than there are who let each day take care of itself, and if the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world Herbert Hoover will be the next President of the United States. Never before in the history of this country has a man made such a strong appeal to women, particularly to mothers.

The reason is plain: Be it ever so humble, Herbert Hoover knows there is no place like home in the heart of the American and that is why he wants the home to have much greater influence in the whole scheme of American life.

To working people no phrase in the Hoover speech of acceptance meant anywhere near what "Her man's job" conveyed. This took in the entire story of home—food, clothing and school for the children, the three in one, and after its utterance countless honest hearts, silently but sincerely pulsed approval and applause. Men who are fathers breathed a sigh of relief, and mothers, many of them, wiped away a tear of joy.

People who work with their hands have hopes and ambitions. Herbert Hoover, be it kept in mind, worked with his hands and he knows, and to working people he proved his heart is in the proper place when he said, "There is no guarantee against poverty equal to a job for every man." And that is just why every woman has a perfect right to be interested in "Her man's job."

PENETRATION

Representatives of European universities are soon to be brought to America to study our schools. The trip is made possible by the council of Christian association. This is the kind of thing that ought to be going on among the nations of the world all the time. This is peaceful penetration of our borders for the good of all nations and their relationship.

INSURANCE

Life insurance in America has increased ten-fold since 1900. By the end of this year it is said it will have exceeded, by sales and assets, the inconceivable figure of 100 billion dollars. There are many millions of people in the United States guarded by life insurance. But there are not enough. There never will be enough until every family is amply provided for. There is no sounder investment and your obligation to pay is in itself a great discipline.

BENEFACTORS

Men with imagination, translating their ideas into gold, getting rich are the great servants of the common good. Ingersoll, producing a dollar watch, leaves a fortune to be devoted to giving poor boys an education. Rich men are frequently criticized. Somebody says all they know is how to make money. If that were true with most of them America would not be fortunate to have many. Knowing how to make money and not knowing how to use it presents a curious combination of smartness and dumbness. Now and then we find a well-balanced man, knowing both. Such men are the real benefactors.

PRACTICAL

This would be a pretty sad world if everybody were "practical." Suppose men gave to great causes, in every instance, only what they could afford. Suppose people did only what they were comfortably able to do. Suppose there was no such thing as taking a long chance, no such thing as adventure, no such thing as doing more than you thought you could do. Then life would be dull indeed. We should be clogs.

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—I urge visitors to glimpse New York's skyline from Brooklyn Heights—four minutes ride on the Seventh Avenue subway from Wall Street, and less than twenty minutes from Times Square. Or go over Brooklyn bridge. Whatever the trouble, if any, it's worth it. In deed, sightseers should not depart from New York without seeing Brooklyn.

The other day when I said one reviewer had remarked, not a play out of fourteen seen this season had caused any emotion in his breast, both he and I omitted "Machinal." This play of a lady's life and a death chair, told in episodic fashion, has been hailed by most of the critics, who have turned a slow start into a success. Or, rather, it was the producing of Arthur Hopkins that did it.

Ruby Keeler, bride of Al Jolson, is not to be cheated out of a Ziegfeld stage career by her marriage to the black face comedian-singer after all. She has cabled from London that she will appear in the girl glorifier's "Whoopee," the first Ziegfeld production of the season. It opens for a tryout in Pittsburgh, Oct. 29. (This is not an advertisement as Pittsburgh is one town where the column does not appear.)

Opera and symphony concerts are too popular in New York. Poor music lovers stand little chance, or, rather, if they can get in, their only chance is to stand. Tickets are bought up a season in advance. New York needs a music hall-opera house combination as large as Atlantic City's new "largest convention hall in the world." Or, perhaps, it could get along with an opera house seating 10,000 and a concert hall seating 15,000.

Speaking of opera attendance, the largest single crowds probably are in Cleveland. When the Metropolitan comes there for a week each season, it is possible to see 9,200 opera lovers seated for a single performance of the opera in the auditorium.

The New York Life Insurance Company's monumental skyscraper on the site of the old Madison Square Garden at Madison Square is nearly completed. On the roof of the old garden Harry Thaw killed Stanford White, architect, who had designed the famous building—killed him on its roof garden, one of the most artistic New York ever saw. New York visitors come to town, I still point out the site, but it is difficult to picture the old scene now. The new Madison Square Garden is at Fifth Street and Eighth Avenue, much farther up town.

Another famous building turned over to wreckers is the old Herald plant at Broadway and 35th Street (Herald Square). Of two stories, in the Italian style, it well could have been saved. But the march of progress demands its sacrifice. When the old Herald moved out some years ago, and stores occupied the structure, the famous chime clock over the south entrance, was put in storage somewhere. But perhaps its skyscraper engender a new sort of religion—an endeavor to pierce the mysteries of the sky. The skyline is oriental fantastic—a dream city of the heavens, appearing out of the mist.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

This so-called Machine Age seems to be also the Era of Needless Complications. Nearly everybody appears to be trying to avoid any form of simplicity.

You buy two automobiles, then employ a chauffeur, and build another room to the house to put the chauffeur in, after which you discover that the house is so big you must have another servant to keep the place in order. As Don Marquis says, we clip off a dog's hair and then buy a blanket for him.

NO GOOD

They were sitting around discussing the talking movie. How in a short space of time it has come to the fore—with dozens of improved machines on the market. Every day something changed on it—every morning some peculiar outfit brought to the studio and tried out.

"Listen," out in the producer; "the other day I had one of my stars make a test in front of one of the new inventions—he danced, sang and spoke in it for two hours. I guess something went wrong with the machine—after two hours all it did was clean his hat for him."

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Justice Harlan F. Stone is a very interesting character to me because he furnishes the only proof, so far as I am concerned, that United States supreme court justices are human, like the rest of us.

Others may be able to prove it by other justices.

My proof rests on Justice Stone. The other justices either were appointed a long while ago, before my time in Washington, or, previously, they came from somewhere else.

In the former case they already were justices when I arrived. In the latter, they arrived here as justices themselves. In either event they were justices when I got my first slant at 'em—and a United States supreme court justice, once a justice, is about as comprehensible as infinity to the normal mind, whatever that justice's mental make-up may have been originally.

But Justice Stone I caught foul. I first met him when he was nothing but attorney general—a mere cabinet member.

Even then it was apparent that the only thing which made him tick was the inspiration of "the law." The interview I had with him related to something else, but we did touch on an act of congress which I considered impossible—and so did he. He said so, in so many words.

"And yet," he added, "We are forced to believe it possible, because it is the law."

(Water runs up hill if the law says so.)

Not so very long ago I stopped in at a restaurant down near the capitol building, and there I found Justice Stone eating lunch.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

HOW TO ACHIEVE GOOD GROOMING

Beauty to most of us is a matter of feature, coloring and type. I think that as a general rule, most of us feel that unless we have been endowed by a gracious nature with lovely eyes, good features and a good complexion, we might as well despair of ever achieving the distinction of being classed as beautiful. Undoubtedly, a strong, slender body and a charming personality will go far toward placing one in the class of natural beauties. There is much more to good looks than just these major considerations. They are the fine points—points of good grooming which influence a woman's good appearance to an extent the uninitiate can never wholly appreciate.

No matter what you may believe on the subject or how the shade of lights may flatter your efforts, you can take my word for it that you never look one bit different from what you are. If you start out in the morning with a clean, clear face using either a cleansing cream or a special washing preparation, then stimulate your skin, especially if you are past your early youth, and finish it with either a liquid cream foundation or some protective preparation. And finally finish with a careful same as anybody else. That was discovery No. 2. He eats—ordinary food. I never saw a United States supreme court justice doing it before. I always suspected that they had their food sent in, to be sure. But to devour it openly!—my!

Justice Stone is a jurist who looks as if he might live on something substantial, at that.

There are two types of supreme court justices—

1. Those with bulging brows, like Justice Holmes and Brandeis.
2. Those who bulge below the diaphragm, like Chief Justice Taft (in spite of all his banting), and distinctly like Justice Stone.

Justice Stone is a curious combination of an exceptionally bulky and yet a quick-motivated man.

An air of weighty deliberation is characteristic of the other members of the federal supreme bench. Justice Stone's manner suggests prompt decision and not particularly favorable decision, either. He has a lowering expression, which fails to hint at the tempering of justice with much mercy.

Most of the justices have merely cold faces. Justice Holmes'—an exception—is kindly. Justice Stone's—what's in a name?—is hard.

Peculiar!—how a man is affected by an appointment to the federal supreme bench.

Previously, perhaps, he was quite approachable and affable. They say Chief Justice Taft was so—and several of his associates—but Justice Stone, to my personal knowledge was.

blend of rouge and powder selected in colors to suit your type and individuality. If you employ these three fundamentals of beauty you may be sure that you will look charming and well groomed when you leave your house.

If, on the other hand, you slap on a dab of rouge, film your face with powder, neglecting those all-important areas back of the ears and around the chin, neck and throat, you are going to look as though you dressed in a haphazard manner and had achieved haphazard results.

For a skin that shows the tendency to excessive oiliness and powder caking around the nose, forehead and chin, instead of using the usual cream foundations, purchase a liquid astringent which not only tends to correct the condition, but neutralizes it immediately so that your powder will adhere. Should you, on the other hand, have such a dry skin that powder flakes, especially around your nose, put a little liquid balm or liquid foundation well into the skin, and then apply your powder with a pad of cotton, placing it and then dusting off the excess.

If your dry rouge is not very successful, try substituting cream rouge. It is much more lasting, and while it requires a little more attention in putting it on, it gives a generally better effect.

And as a last word, in the name of the following day's makeup, do please remember to remove your makeup every night, and should you be called upon to supplement your morning's ablutions during the day, give your skin the merited attention of using either a toning lotion or a fine cleansing cream to remove the old makeup.

ANNA CUTS DOWN CALORIES; REDUCES THIRTY-TWO POUNDS

Anna was just in to get weighed on my scales. She is now down to 208 pounds—a loss of 32 pounds since she began dieting about six months ago.

To those of you who did not see the first write-up of Anna, I will tell you that she is one of the maids at the apartment hotel where I used to live, and when she took charge of my apartment I got her interested in reducing, for although she is only 4 ft., 8 inches tall she weighed 240 pounds. She has been much overweight since childhood and thought it was natural for her. She didn't eat very much—she said—but I counted her calories for one average day for her and found on that day she had eaten 3,000. She always had candy and nuts between meals, which made her calories run up so high. For a woman of her height, even with her work, she would not need more than 2,200 to 2,500 C. daily. (500 C. daily over the maintenance diet will add over 45 pounds in a year's time.)

When I first wrote of her, she had lost 11 pounds. Now she has lost in all 32, making an average of five pounds a month. While I was gone this summer, she fell down a little. She began to eat ice cream, sodas rather frequently during the hot weather. However, she lost one-quarter of a pound during that six-weeks period. Which was a great deal better than her instructor did, for that lady gained 10 pounds. (Getting it off now.)

While Anna is still enormous—you can imagine, being so short and still weighing 208—she shows her reduction by her clothes. Her last year's fall coat lapped over at least six inches. She says she can walk much better and work better, and in general feels much better. Her friends are beginning to tell her she looks older—and I think she does, too—but I warned her she must be prepared for such comments for she may look a lot older than she does before she gets down to anywhere near normal weight. She is old enough to have some wrinkles, anyway. They didn't show before any more than a filled balloon would.

I've promised Anna that when she gets down to normal and gets back on her maintenance diet, her face will plump up a little and she will look younger. She says she doesn't care if she doesn't—she'll feel younger and will look like a human being instead of a hog's head.

I'll keep you posted on Anna. I know from your letters you are interested. I've told her that you are all watching her and she is on the verge of setting a good example for those of you who are reducing.

Those of you who are in need of instructions on how to reduce (or gain) weight may have our pamphlet on the subject.

Umbilical Infection
M. is troubled with her navel. She evidently has an infection there. She says modestly keeps her away from the doctor. Don't be silly, M. Your sentiment isn't modest at all, but really a form of immodesty. You may have some little infection which will clear up with cleanliness and antiseptics, or it may be something more severe. If the condition doesn't clear up with frequent washings and the application of some antiseptic such as boric acid powder sprinkled in, you must go to a physician.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and mailing. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

DAME GOSSIP, PUBLIC OPINION, TWIN SISTERS, WORK HAVOC

Talk is cheap and it may be cruel. It is true to say that many a career has been blasted by idle tongues, but it is none the less true. One of our readers writes to tell of the undesired unhappiness brought into her life by gossip, the twin sisters, Dame Gossip and Public Opinion.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: In the column recently was a woman signing herself 'Broken Hearted L. L.' She was in love with a man separated from his wife, who was talking divorce and remarriage, only to find the wife wouldn't consent. Let her read my tragic life of loneliness, then advise everybody not to love the man, when Old Dame Gossip and her twin sister, Public Opinion, get their tongues going, there is nothing left. Old friends snub you, new ones shake you as soon as one of the 'twins' happens along their way. While boarding with a friend I met my man. He and his wife had been separated six years before I ever met him. She had been in training two years when we learned to know each other. He had gone with other girls, she with other fellows. We were all in our early twenties. When she graduated and came back as an 'R. N.' and started in her work was when the 'twins' commenced to talk. I had gone with the man four years before we married. Have been married 14 years. I loved him dearly and still do, though I haven't a friend or acquaintance in the whole town. I have been dropped like a red hot iron. Even so, marrying him I was never taken in as one of his family. Mrs. Lee, I will swear I did nothing wrong, and as I am now, morally clean in mind and body. It never hurt him. He has his work, and these 'twins' never bother him. I often wonder if they will ever pay for what they have done.

LONESOME M.
Do you know I cannot understand how your whole life can have been ruined in the way you say, but I am certainly sorry. My experience through life has been that people are usually tolerant, and even if they are hard at first, when they don't understand and think a woman has done wrong, after a time the feeling is softened and they take her back. I, therefore, cannot understand how they could turn against you so. Men also sometimes suffer very much from these same 'twins,' as you call them.

THE FOUR BROTHERS

"Cormorant was sure that he had not understood the lady in green."

"Did you say your name was Ibis?" asked he.

"I certainly did," replied the stranger. "What is so strange about that, pray tell?"

"Nothing, except I thought that this lived in Egypt, a country many miles away from here. I met a bird on my travels and he told me so."

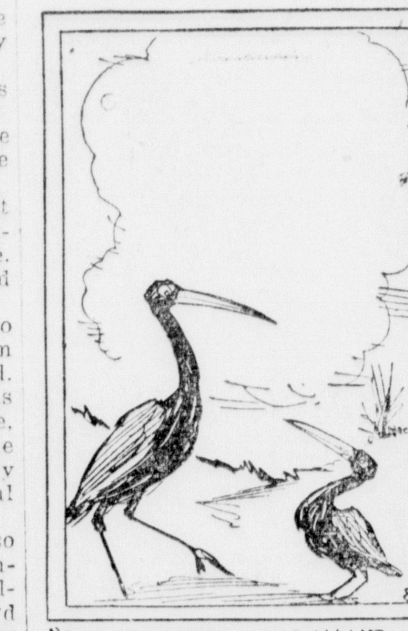

"Cormorant was curious to know what the lady in green would say to that. She chuckled. 'What that bird told you was right, as far as it went,' said she. 'but he didn't tell you half the story. Like every other family in the world, ours has several branches.'

"Many, many years ago, so they say, there were four brothers who could not agree. Although each was a handsome bird in his own way, each was jealous of the other three.

"One brother wore a coat of white that he kept spotless, brushing it every morning until it shone like snow when the bright sunlight falls upon it, and just to make the white more dazzling the bottom of his coat was trimmed with jet black feathers that dropped gracefully over his tail and wings.

"The second brother declared that if he could not be king at least he was going to dress like one, and he took the king's color—purple—for his own pet shade and never would wear anything else. But so that the king would not be angry the second brother chose to trim the purple with green, and when he went out walking there was never a bird more fitly dressed than he.

"The third brother chose a suit that was odd instead of beautiful and never was without wrinkles, anywhere. They didn't show before any more than a filled balloon would.

his color of yellow straws. His coat was green and black and white, but one never thought much of that, so lovely was his golden collar.

The fourth brother was really the most magnificent. He was a vain chap and wanted everybody to notice him, and so he always dressed in glowing scarlet. And whenever he appeared he was greeted by 'Oh!' and 'Ah!' of admiration.

"How these four brothers did scrap among themselves, scarcely a day passed that they did not get into a quarrel that disturbed the peace of the family!"

Men who are fathers breathed a sigh of relief, and mothers, many of them, wiped away a tear of joy.

People who work with their hands have hopes and ambitions. Herbert Hoover, be it kept in mind, worked with his hands and he knows, and to working people he proved his heart is in the proper place when he said, "There is no guarantee against poverty equal to a job for every man." And that is just why every woman has a perfect right to be interested in "Her man's job."

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

PENETRATION

Representatives of European universities are soon to be brought to America to study our schools. The trip is made possible by the council of Christian association. This is the kind of thing that ought to be going on among the nations of the world all the time. This is peaceful penetration of our borders for the good of all nations and their relationship.

INSURANCE

Life insurance in America has increased ten-fold since 1900. By the end of this year it is said it will have exceeded, by sales and assets, the inconceivable figure of 100 billion dollars. There are many millions of people in the United States guarded by life insurance. But there are not enough. There never will be enough until every family is amply provided for. There is no sounder investment and your obligation to pay is in itself a great discipline.

BENEFACTORS

Men with imagination, translating their ideas into gold, getting rich are the great servants of the common good. Ingalls, producing a dollar watch, leaves a fortune to be devoted to giving poor boys an education. Rich men are frequently criticized. Somebody says all they know is how to make money. If that were true with most of them America would not be fortunate to have many. Knowing how to make money and not knowing how to use it presents a curious combination of smartness and dumbness. Now and then we find a well-balanced man, knowing both. Such men are the real benefactors.

PRACTICAL

This would be a pretty sad world if everybody were "practical." Suppose men gave to great causes, in every instance, only what they could afford. Suppose people did only what they were comfortably able to do. Suppose there was no such thing as taking a long chance, no such thing as adventure, no such thing as doing more than you thought you could do. Then life would be dull indeed. We should be cled.

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK.—I urge visitors to glimpse New York's skyline from Brooklyn Heights—four minutes ride on the Seventh Avenue subway from Wall Street, and less than twenty minutes from Times Square. Or go over Brooklyn bridge. Whatever the trouble, if any, it's worth it. Indeed, sightseers should not depart from New York without seeing Brooklyn.

The other day when I said one reviewer had remarked, not a play out of fourteen seen this season had caused any emotion in his breast, both he and I omitted "Machinal." This play of a lady's life and a death chair, told in episodic fashion, has been hailed by most of the critics, who have turned a slow start into a success. Or, rather, it was the producing of Arthur Hopkins that did it.

Ruby Keeler, bride of Al Jolson, is not to be cheated out of a Ziegfeld stage career by her marriage to the black face comedian-singer after all. She has cabled from London that she will appear in the girl glorifier's "Whoopie" the first Ziegfeld production of the season. It opens for a tryout in Pittsburgh, Oct. 29. (This is not an advertisement as Pittsburgh is one town where the column does not appear.)

Opera and symphony concerts are too popular in New York. Poor music lovers stand little chance, or, rather, if they can get in, their only chance is to stand. Tickets are bought up a season in advance. New York needs a music hall-opera house combination as large as Atlantic City's new "largest convention hall in the world." Or, perhaps, it could get along with an opera house seating 10,000 and a concert hall seating 15,000.

Speaking of opera attendance, the largest single crowds probably are in Cleveland. When the Metropolitan comes there for a week each season, it is possible to see 9,200 opera lovers seated for a single performance of the opera in the auditorium.

The New York Life Insurance Company's monumental skyscraper on the site of the old Madison Square Garden at Madison Square is nearly completed. On the roof of the old garden Harry Thaw killed Stanford White, architect, who had designed the famous building, killed him on its roof garden, one of the most artistic New York ever saw. When visitors come to town, I still point out the site, but it is difficult to picture the old scene now. The new Madison Square Garden is at Fifth street and Eighth avenue, much farther up town.

Another famous building turned over to wreckers is the old Herald plant, at Broadway and 36th street (Herald Square). Of two stories, in the Italian style, it well could have been saved. But the march of progress demands its sacrifice. When the old Herald moved out some years ago, and stores occupied the structure, the famous chime clock over the south entrance, was put into storage somewhere.

New York is sacrilegious. But perhaps its skyscrapers engender a new sort of religion—an endeavor to pierce the mysteries of the sky. The skyline is oriental fantastic—a dream city of the heavens, appearing out of the mist.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

This so-called Machine Age seems to be also the Era of Needless Complications. Nearly everybody appears to be trying to avoid any form of simplicity. You buy two automobiles, then employ a chauffeur and build another room to the house to put the chauffeur in, after which you discover that the house is so big you must have another servant to keep the place in order. As Don Marquis says, we clip off a dog's hair and then buy a blanket for him.

NO GOOD

They were sitting around discussing the talking movie. How in a short space of time it has come to the fore—with dozens of improved machines on the market. Every day something changed on it—every morning something peculiar outfit brought to the studio and tried out.

"Listen," cut in the producer; "the other day I had one of my stars make a test in front of one of the new inventions—He danced, sang and spoke in it for two hours. I guess something went wrong with the machine—after two hours all it did was clean his hat for him."

THEN HE PAINTED

"Are you really a bank examiner, Mr. Tompkins?" asked the hostess. "Yes, Madam, I happen to be." "Then I hope you will have time to examine Baby's bank. No matter how much we shake it, nothing will come out of it."

AND THEY LIVED HAPPILY EVER AFTER

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Justice Harlan F. Stone is a very interesting character to me because he furnishes the only proof, so far as I am concerned, that United States supreme court justices are human, like the rest of us.

Others may be able to prove it by other justices.

My proof rests on Justice Stone.

The other justices either were appointed a long while ago, before my time in Washington, or, previously, they came from somewhere else.

In the former case they already were justices when I arrived. In the latter, they arrived here as justices themselves. In either event they were justices when I got my first slant at 'em—and a United States supreme court justice, once a justice, is about as comprehensible as infinity to the normal mind, whatever that justice's mental make-up may have been originally.

But Justice Stone I caught foul. I first met him when he was nothing but attorney general—a mere cabinet member.

Even then it was apparent that the only thing which made him tick was the inspiration of "the law." The interview I had with him related to something else, but we did touch on an act of congress which I considered impossible—and so did he. He said so in so many words.

"And yet," he added, "We are forced to believe it possible, because it is the law."

(Water runs up hill if the law says so.)

Not so very long ago I stopped in at a restaurant down near the capitol building, and there I found Justice Stone eating lunch.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

HOW TO ACHIEVE GOOD GROOMING

Beauty to most of us is a matter of feature coloring and type. I think that as a general rule, most of us feel that unless we have been endowed by a gracious nature with lovely eyes, good features and a good complexion, we might as well despair of ever achieving the distinction of being classed as beautiful. Undoubtedly, a strong, slender body and a charming personality will go far toward placing one in the class of natural beauties. There is much more to good looks than just these major considerations. They are the fine points—points of good grooming which influence a woman's good appearance to an extent the uninitiate can never wholly appreciate.

No matter what you may believe on the subject or how the shade of lights may flatter your efforts, you can take my word for it that you never look one bit different from what you are. If you start out in the morning to first cleanse your face using either a cleansing cream or a special washing preparation, then stimulate your skin, especially if you are past your early youth, and finish it with either a liquid cream foundation or some protective preparation, and finally finish with a careful blend of rouge and powder selected in colors to suit your type and individuality. If you employ these three fundamentals of beauty you may be sure that you will look charming and well groomed when you leave your house.

If, on the other hand, you slap on a dab of rouge, film your face with powder, neglecting those all-important areas back of the ears and around the chin, neck and throat, you are going to look as though you dressed in a haphazard manner and had achieved haphazard results.

For a skin that shows the tendency to excessive oiliness and powder caking around the nose, forehead and chin, instead of using the usual cream foundation, purchase a liquid astringent which not only tends to correct the condition, but neutralizes it immediately so that your powder will adhere. Should you, on the other hand, have such a dry skin that powder flakes, especially around your nose, put a little liquid balm or liquid foundation well into the skin, and then apply your powder with a pad of cotton, placing it and then dusting off the excess.

If your dry rouge is not very successful, try substituting cream rouge. It is much more lasting, and while it requires a little more attention in putting

Diet and Health

ANNA CUTS DOWN CALORIES; REDUCES THIRTY-TWO POUNDS

Anna was just in to get weighed on my scales. She is now down to 208 pounds—a loss of 32 pounds since she began dieting about six months ago.

To those of you who did not see the first write-up of Anna, I will tell you that she is one of the maids at the apartment hotel where I used to live, and when she took charge of my apartment I got her interested in reducing, for although she is only 4 ft. 8 inches tall she weighed 240 pounds. She has been much overweight since childhood and thought it was natural for her. She didn't eat very much—she said—but I counted her calories for one average day for her and found on that day she had eaten 3,000. She always had candy and nuts between meals, which made her calories run up so high. For a woman of her height, even with her work, she would not need more than 2,200 to 2,500 C. daily. (500 C. daily over the maintenance diet will add over 45 pounds in a year's time.)

When I first wrote of her, she had lost 11 pounds. Now she has lost in all 32, making an average of five pounds a month. While I was gone this summer, she fell down a little. She began to eat ice cream sodas rather frequently during the hot weather. However, she lost one-quarter of a pound during that six-week period. Which was a great deal better than her instructor did, for that lady gained 10 pounds. (Getting it off now.)

While Anna is still enormous—you can imagine, being so short and still weighing 208—she shows her reduction by her clothes. Her last year's fall coat lapped over at least six inches. She says she can walk much better and work better, and in general feels much better. Her friends are beginning to tell her she looks older—and I think she does, too—but I warned her she must be prepared for such comments for she may look a lot older than she does before she gets down to any where near normal weight. She is old enough to have some wrinkles, anyway. They didn't show before any more than a filled balloon would.

I've promised Anna that when she gets down to normal and gets back on her maintenance diet, her face will plump up a little and she will look younger. She says she doesn't care if she doesn't—she'll feel younger and will look like a human being instead of a hog's head.

I'll keep you posted on Anna. I know from your letters you are interested. I've told her that you are all watching her and she is enthusiastic about setting a good example for those of you who are reducing.

Those of you who are in need of instructions on how to reduce (or gain) weight may have our pamphlet on the subject.

Unbilled Infection
M. is troubled with her navel. She evidently has an infection there. She says modesty keeps her away from the doctor.

Don't be silly, M. Your sentiment isn't modesty at all, but really a form of immaturity. You may have some little infection which will clear up with cleanliness and antiseptics, or it may be something more severe. If the condition doesn't clear up with frequent washings and the application of some antiseptic such as boric acid powder sprinkled in, you must go to a physician.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

DAME GOSSIP, PUBLIC OPINION, TWIN SISTERS, WORK HAVOC

Talk is cheap and it may be cruel. It is true to say that many a career has been blasted by idle tongues, but it is none the less true. One of our readers writes to tell of the undesired unhappiness brought into her life by gossip, or, as she graphically says, by the twin sisters, Dame Gossip and Public Opinion.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: In the column recently was a woman signing herself 'Broken Hearted L. L.' She was in love with a man separated from his wife, who was talking divorce and remarriage, only to find the wife wouldn't consent. Let her read my tragic life of loneliness, to then advise everybody not to do it, for no matter how much you love the man, when Old Dame Gossip and her twin sister, Public Opinion, get their tongues going, there is nothing left. Old friends snub you, new ones shake you as soon as one of the 'twins' happens along their way. While boarding with a friend I met my man. He and his wife had been separated six years before I ever met him. She had been in training two years when we learned to know each other. He had gone with other girls, she with other fellows. We were all in our early twenties. When she graduated and came back as an 'R. N.' and started in her work 'was' with the 'twins' commenced to talk. I had gone with the man four years before we married. Have been married 14 years. I loved him dearly and still do, though I haven't a friend or acquaintance in the whole town. I have been dropped like a red hot iron. Even so, marrying him I was never taken in as one of his family. Mrs. Lee, I will swear I did nothing wrong, and was, as I am now, morally clean in mind and body. It never hurt him. He has his work, and these 'twins' never bother him. I often wonder if they will ever pay for what they have done.

LONESOME M."

Do you know I cannot understand how your whole life can have been ruined in the way you say, but I am certainly sorry. My experience through life has been that people are usually tolerant, and even if they are hard at first, when they don't understand and think a woman has done wrong, after a time the feeling is softened and they take her back. I, therefore, cannot understand how they could turn against you so. Men 'also' sometimes suffer very much from these same 'twins,' as you call them.

THE FOUR BROTHERS

"Cormorant was sure that he had not understood the lady in green.

"Did you say your name was this?" asked he, "certainly did," replied the stranger. "What is so strange about that, pray tell?"

"Nothing, except I thought that this lived in Egypt, a country many miles away from here. I met a bird on my travels and he told me so."

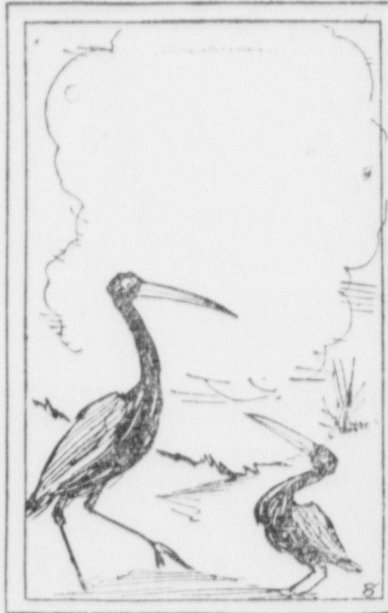

"Cormorant was curious to know what the lady in green would say to that. She chuckled. "What that bird told you was right, as far as it went," said she, "but he didn't tell you half the story. Like every other family in the world, ours has several branches.

"Many, many years ago, so they say, there were four brothers who could not agree. Although each was a handsome bird in his own way, each was jealous of the other three.

"One brother wore a coat of white that he kept spotless, brushing it every morning until it shone like snow when the bright sunlight fell upon it, and just to make the white more dazzling the bottom of his coat was trimmed with jet black feathers that drooped gracefully over his tail and wings.

"The second brother declared that if he could not be king at least he was going to dress like one, and he took the white color—purple—for his own pet shade and never would wear anything else. But so that the king would not be angry the second brother chose to trim the purple with green, and when he went out walking there was never a bird more fit to dress than he.

"The third brother chose a suit that was odd instead of beautiful and never was seen without his color of yellow straw. His coat was green and black, and white, but one never thought much of that, so lovely was his golden collar.

"DID YOU SAY YOUR NAME WAS THIS?" ASKED HE.

"The fourth brother was really the smallest of them all but the most magnificent. He was a vain chap and wanted everybody to notice him, and so he always dressed in glowing scarlet. And whenever he appeared he was greeted by 'Ohs!' and 'Ahs!' of admiration.

"How these four brothers did scrap among themselves. Scarcely a day passed that they did not get into a quarrel, that disturbed the peace of the family."

PUNTS AND PASSES

By PHIL FRAME

Many of the collegiate football games scheduled in different parts of the country for next Saturday present such distinct possibilities for upsets that the task of picking a large percentage of winners for THE GAZETTE this week is going to be extremely difficult for Gus H. Fan.

In fact, some of the contests are between teams which appear so evenly matched on the basis of records that to predict the winner will be harder than filling an inside straight in a poker game.

However, nothing daunted, Walker Gibney, 610 N. Galloway St., has ventured his opinions this week on the possible outcome of twenty-one major contests.

Incidentally, the Xenia fan forecasts a victory for Xenia Central over Cincinnati Withrow Friday, something for which the Blue and White team has been waiting for impatiently for several years.

Following are Gibney's predictions for Saturday:

Xenia Central to beat Withrow.
Oberlin to beat Case.
Ohio U. to beat Cincinnati.
Western Reserve to beat Hiram.
Ohio Northern to beat Baldwin Wallace.
Ohio Wesleyan to beat Miami.
Wittenberg to beat Marshall Col.
Oglethorpe to beat St. Xavier.
S. California to beat California.
Muskingum to beat Denison.
Columbia to beat Dartmouth.
Ga. Tech to beat Notre Dame.
Army to beat Harvard.
Illinois to beat Indiana.
Minnesota to beat Chicago.
Nebraska to beat Syracuse.
Northwestern to beat Kentucky.
Ohio State to beat Michigan.
Penn. to beat Penn State.
Wisconsin to beat Purdue.
Yale to beat Brown.

COACH WILSON ATTE MPTS TO BRING BLUE AND WHITE OFF "HIGH HORSE"

As Xenia Central High School's football squad prepares this week for the clash with the Withrow Tigers at Cincinnati Friday afternoon, Coach Walter L. "Pinkie" Wilson is striving to bring the athletes down to normal.

This he is finding is no easy task for Central's feat in playing a scoreless tie with Piqua last Saturday has injected a "cocky" spirit into the team which must be eliminated if the Blue and White eleven hopes to prevail against Withrow this week.

The squad has been practicing new formations this week to be used in the Withrow contest. Light scrimmage practice was the order of the day Wednesday. The squad is in excellent physical condition and should not be handicapped by injuries.

One year ago before an expectant Xenia audience, Withrow headed Central a 19 to 13 defeat. The 1928 crew is consequently invading Cincinnati Friday bent on revenge.

Xenia gridders are expecting and planning to fight for everything they get against Withrow.

Withrow this season has a stronger team if anything than last year and is favored to win the Big Six title in that city. Already the Tigers have hung up lopsided victories over Hillsboro, Columbus East and Oakwood in the order named.

Coach Wilson scouted the Withrow-Oakwood contest and reports the Cincinnati school has a heavy team with a fast backfield. Freddy Ratterman is the bright star of the Withrow backfield. The fleet-footed quarterback got off a number of long runs in the Oakwood game that added the Tigers in running up a commanding lead.

Central officials announce the Friday game will start at 2:15 o'clock. Roger Johnston will referee the game with Boyd Chambers of the University of Cincinnati as umpire. Ralph Shaeffer as head linesman and Joseph Cassidy as field judge.

Coach Wilson expects to take eighteen players on the trip and a large crowd of Xenia rooters will accompany the team.

Following are the probable starting lineups for the game:

Xenia	Fos.	Withrow
Snyder	l. e.	Carter
Scott	l. t.	Heaton

TRIAL OF EX-XENIA DENTIST SET FOR NOVEMBER 27 HERE

Jury trial of Dr. J. L. Kincaid, Hamilton, O., on an indictment for selling mortgaged property with intent to defraud, has been set for November 27 in Common Pleas Court, Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall announced Thursday.

Dr. Kincaid pleaded not guilty and was released on his own recognizance. Judge R. L. Gowdy overruled a motion of Attorney F. W. Dunkle, defense counsel, to quash the indictment.

The indictment charges that Dr. Kincaid, while operating dental parlors on E. Main St., mortgaged all of his dental equipment to Alfred V. Curtis, Akron, O., and then disposed of the property November 17.

The equipment is valued at $1,200 and includes an operating room and laboratory and reception room furniture.

WOMEN FINED FOR COAT THEFT; CASE HEARD ON TUESDAY

Mary Vance, Xenia, and Alberta Elliott, Jamestown, were each fined $50 and costs in probate court at Wilmington Tuesday evening by Judge Hugh J. Wright on charges of stealing two coats from the Earl Benler dancing hall on the Wilmington Pike October 4. After making arrangements for payment of the fines and costs, the women were discharged from custody.

The women were arrested Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Gus Miller of Clinton County. The affidavit against Alberta Elliott was filed by Mrs. Sarah Wertz, owner of one of the stolen coats and Earl Benler made the charge against Miss Vance.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The first edition of the Central High "Review," school weekly, will be published late this week. Margaret Neeld, a senior, is the editor-in-chief and S. A. Ewen is faculty adviser. The size of the paper will remain unchanged.

The winner roast sponsored by the senior class Tuesday night at the municipal waterworks plant north of Old Town was a huge success. About 200 people, including students and members of the faculty, turned out for the affair despite threatening weather.

The "pop parade" and bonfire held the Friday night preceding the Piqua game was the first of a series of three such affairs planned for the current football season. The second demonstration will precede the Troy game and the third on the eve of the Thanksgiving game with Springfield.

Those classes which are fortunate enough to obtain candy concessions at the school are realizing neat profits for their efforts. The junior class, which dispenses refreshments at the home football games, had a big day at the Piqua contest Saturday when its sales are reported to have exceeded $50. The candy sales, which have been sponsored at the noon hour by the senior class for the last four weeks, netted that class about $40. For the next four weeks the candy sales will be handled by the girl's gym classes.

FINANCIERS PLAN TRANS-ATLANTIC TRIPS WITH ECKENER

Discussions concerning a dirigible transportation corporation, to operate on a fifty-four hour schedule between Europe and the United States, probably will get under way today, according to the Graf Zeppelin, and interested financiers.

Dr. Eckener in New York yesterday revealed that he hoped to formulate a corporation, with a capital of $14,000,000, for trans-Atlantic service before the Graf Zeppelin returns to its home port at Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Later Captain E. A. Lehmann, first officer of the Graf Zeppelin, said the conference would be held here today.

How To Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart As Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become dependent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded.—D. D. Jones sells lots of it. THESE young folks have set up their home in a town a hundred miles from the community in which they were reared. But they keep in close touch with the old folks—by telephone.

Once a week, Mother calls Daughter to find out how things are going. And Daughter calls Mother whenever there is any news that can't wait for the weekly call.

Calling by number, they can talk to each other at any time for 70 cents or less. The cost is insignificant in bridging distance and keeping family ties.

The newly crowned sauerkraut eating champion of Ohio probably holds another title. He ought to lead the world in stomach aches.

Chicago thinks things could be lots worse. Suppose Lake Michigan was deep enough for the gangs to bring in some battleships!

PUNTS AND PASSES

By PHIL FRAME

Many of the collegiate football games scheduled in different parts of the country for next Saturday present such distinct possibilities for upsets that the task of picking a large percentage of winners for THE GAZETTE this week is going to be extremely difficult for Gus H. Pan.

In fact, some of the contests are between teams which appear so evenly matched on the basis of records that to predict the winner will be harder than filling an inside straight in a poker game.

However, nothing daunted, Walker Gibeay, 610 N. Galloway St., has ventured his opinions this week on the possible outcome of twenty-one major contests.

Incidentally, the Xenia fan forecasts a victory for Xenia Central over Cincinnati Withrow Friday, something for which the Blue and White team has been waiting for impatiently for several years.

Following are Gibeay's predictions for Saturday:

Xenia Central to beat Withrow, Oberlin to beat Case, Ohio U. to beat Cincinnati, Western Reserve to beat Baldwin-Wallace, Ohio Wesleyan to beat Miami, Wittenberg to beat Marshall Col., Oglethorpe to beat St. Xavier, S. California to beat California, Muskingum to beat Denison, Columbia to beat Dartmouth, Ga. Tech to beat Notre Dame, Army to beat Harvard, Illinois to beat Indiana, Minnesota to beat Chicago, Nebraska to beat Syracuse, Northwestern to beat Kentucky, Ohio State to beat Michigan, Penn. to beat Penn State, Wisconsin to beat Purdue, Yale to beat Brown.

Sayre, anchor man for the winners, rolled 540 for high score of the match. Box score:

COACH WILSON ATTEMPTS TO BRING BLUE AND WHITE OFF "HIGH HORSE"

As Xenia Central High School's football squad prepares this week for the clash with the Withrow Tigers at Cincinnati Friday afternoon, Coach Walter L. "Pinkie" Wilson is striving to bring the athletes down to normal.

This he is finding is no easy task for Central's feat in playing a scoreless tie with Piqua last Saturday has injected a "cocky" spirit into the team which must be eliminated if the Blue and White eleven hopes to prevail against Withrow this week.

The squad has been practicing new formations this week to be used in the Withrow contest. Light scrimmage practice was the order of the day Wednesday. The squad is in excellent physical condition and should not be handicapped by injuries.

One year ago before an expectant Xenia audience, Withrow defeated Central 19 to 13 defeat. The 1928 crew is consequently invading Cincinnati Friday bent on revenge.

Xenia gridders are expecting and planning to fight for everything they get against Withrow. Withrow this season has a stronger team if anything than last year and is favored to win the big Six title in that city. Already the Tigers have hung up lopsided victories over Hillsboro, Columbus East and Oakwood in the order named.

Coach Wilson scouted the Withrow-Oakwood contest and reports the Cincinnati school has a heavy team with a fast backfield. Freddy Ratterman is the bright star of the Withrow backfield. The fleet-footed quarterback got off a number of long runs in the Oakwood game that added the Tigers in running up a commanding lead.

Central officials announce the Friday game will start at 2:45 o'clock. Roger Johnston will referee the game with Boyd Chambers of the University of Cincinnati as umpire, Ralph Shaeffer as head linesman and Joseph Cassidy as field judge.

Coach Wilson expects to take eighteen players on the trip and a large crowd of Xenia rooters will accompany the team.

Following are the probable starting lineups for the game:

Xenia	Pos.	Withrow
Snyder	I. E.	Carter
Scott	I. E.	Heaton
Beals	I. E.	Conrad
Smith	I. E.	Peoples
Weaver	I. E.	Hessel
Jones	I. E.	Parker
Gibney	I. E.	McGugin
Adair	I. E.	Ratterman

TRIAL OF EX-XENIA DENTIST SET FOR NOVEMBER 27 HERE

Jury trial of Dr. J. L. Kincaid, Hamilton, O., on an indictment for selling mortgaged property with intent to defraud, has been set for November 27 in Common Pleas Court, Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall announced Thursday.

Dr. Kincaid pleaded not guilty and was released on his own recognizance. Judge R. L. Gowdy overruled a motion of Attorney F. W. Dunkle, defense counsel, to quash the indictment, Wednesday.

The indictment charges that Dr. Kincaid, while operating dental parlors on E. Main St., mortgaged all of his dental equipment to Alfred V. Curtiss, Akron, O., and then disposed of the property November 17.

The equipment is valued at $1,200 and includes an operating room and laboratory and reception room furniture.

WOMEN FINED FOR COAT THEFT; CASE HEARD ON TUESDAY

Mary Vance, Xenia, and Alberta Elliott, Jamestown, were each fined $50 and costs in probate court at Wilmington Tuesday evening by Judge Hugh J. After making arrangements for payment of the fines and costs, the women were discharged from custody.

The women were arrested Tuesday by Deputy Sheriff Gus Miller of Clinton County. The affidavit against Alberta Elliott was filed by Mrs. Sarah Wertz, owner of one of the stolen coats and Earl Benlehler made the charge against Miss Vance.

CUSTER EXHIBITS RED BATS FROM WEST

Red bats, brought from Colorado by O. C. Custer are attracting much attention in a window at the Steele building, where they are on display with his Modern Woodmen of America Sanatorium photographs. Mr. Custer has added to the display samples of water from the sanatorium's noted hot spring, to the health giving properties of which 8,501 patients who attended the resort from January 1, 1909 until September 19, 1928, can attest.

The Modern Woodmen movie, "The Man Who Won," which will be shown here Friday evening, was exhibited at Cleveland Tuesday.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The first edition of the Central High "first" school weekly will be published late this week. Margaret Need, a senior, is the editor-in-chief and S. A. E. is faculty advisor. The size of the paper will remain unchanged.

The Wiener roast sponsored by the senior class Tuesday night at the municipal waterworks plant north of Old Town was a huge success. About 200 people, including students and members of the faculty, turned out for the affair despite threatening weather.

The "pop parade" and bonfire held the Friday night preceding the Piqua game was the first of a series of three such affairs planned for the current football season. The second demonstration will precede the Troy game and the third the Cincinnati game. The Thanksgiving game with Springfield.

Those classes which are fortunate enough to obtain candy concessions at the school are realizing net profits for their efforts. The junior class, which dispenses refreshments at the home football games, had a big day at the Piqua contest Saturday when its sales are reported to have exceeded $60.

The candy sales which have been sponsored at the noon hour by the senior class for the last four weeks, netted that class about $40. For the next four weeks the candy sales will be handled by the girls' gym classes.

ANTIOCH PROFESSOR ADDRESSES FARMERS

After taking the stump in Xenia, the Democratic nominee will continue to Springfield, O., where he is scheduled for a speaking engagement at 8:20 o'clock.

GEDARVILLE HI TO PLAY BEAVERCREEK

In what promises to be an interesting game, Cedarville High School's football eleven will meet Beaver Creek High School gridders Friday afternoon, October 19, at the Cedarville gridiron. The game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

This will be Cedarville's last home game of the season and a close score is anticipated.

The Cedarville eleven won from West Alexandria last week by a score of 19 to 0 with the result the morale of the team is at a high point.

Following the game, the public is invited to enjoy a cafeteria supper at the Cedarville school at 6 o'clock.

VAN DRIVER UNHURT

How To Reduce Varicose Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart As Blood in Veins Flows That Way

Many people have become dependent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunches.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first-class drug store and apply it night and morning as directed you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

Moone's Emerald Oil is a harmless, yet most powerful germicide and two ounces last a very long time. Indeed, so powerful is Emerald Oil that old chronic sores and ulcers are often entirely healed and anyone who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded.—D. D. Jones sells lots of it.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Ordeal attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Ordeal at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. H. L. Sayre's Drug Store. —Adv.

What will You do when Your-Children Cry for Castoria

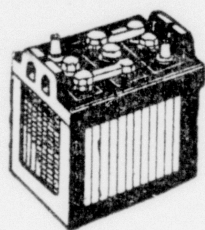

THERE is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of this soothing preparation. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and Baby is comfortable. A few moments, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. Yet this is a vegetable product; a remedy meant for youngsters. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless.

HUDSON SUPER 6

A thrilling NEW DISCOVERY in performance and in value

"It made a Hudson owner of me."

"It changed my whole idea of motor values."

"It showed me that high price is not necessary to own a great car."

Thousands of riders talking like this. A great Hudson program of personal demonstration brought these values home with the impact of a new discovery.

We have never heard such praise of a car. People comparing it to cars costing two or three times as much. Saying it is the easiest riding car they ever drove—saying it is smoother—saying it outperforms all cars of their experience.

In this special month of personal demonstration thousands have ridden in the advanced Hudson Super-Six.

Even those who owned and admired Hudson Super-Sixes of previous issue, have no conception of the superlative quality expressed both mechanically and in body beauty of the great Hudsons of today.

The extraordinary speed of Hudson getaway is but a single expression of the brilliant activity of the New Hudson Super-Six, which is carried on to every phase of performance. And with it a gasoline efficiency that alters all previous standards.

A single ride will explain why this has been the most enthusiastically accepted Hudson ever built.

Konjola...the new medicine...restores the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to more healthy, normal action. The nerves are strengthened, headaches disappear, sleep is restful...Konjola energizes the entire system. Read what this charming young lady has to say about this master medicine.

This is NOT A Paid Endorsement

To the makers of Konjola:—
"I want you to know what your new medicine did for me. The past four months I have been on a tour of the States, and this necessitated irregular eating. My stomach became seriously affected. I could not eat a thing without great pain from indigestion. I tried everything, but Konjola was the first medicine that restored perfect digestion. Within a few days I was fine again. Now, I can eat anything and I shall always carry Konjola when I travel."
Very sincerely yours,

Why suffer with Rheumatism?

You know it cannot be rubbed away

ARE you one of those unfortunate who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered with rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best."—Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

What will You do when Your-Children Cry for Castoria

THERE is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of this soothing preparation. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and Baby is comfortable. A few moments, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. Yet this is a vegetable product; a remedy meant for youngsters. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use, in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless.

Why suffer with Rheumatism?

You know it cannot be rubbed away

ARE you one of those unfortunate who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered with rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so, I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines but I think S.S.S. is the best."—Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

HUDSON SUPER 6

A thrilling NEW DISCOVERY in performance and in value

"It made a Hudson owner of me."

"It changed my whole idea of motor values."

"It showed me that high price is not necessary to own a great car."

Thousands of riders talking like this. A great Hudson program of personal demonstration brought these values home with the impact of a new discovery.

We have never heard such praise of a car. People comparing it to cars costing two or three times as much. Saying it is the easiest riding car they ever drove—saying it is smoother—saying it outperforms all cars of their experience.

In this special month of personal demonstration thousands have ridden in the advanced Hudson Super-Six.

Even those who owned and admired Hudson Super-Sixes of previous issue, have no conception of the superlative quality expressed both mechanically and in body beauty of the great Hudsons of today.

The extraordinary speed of Hudson getaway is but a single expression of the brilliant activity of the New Hudson Super-Six, which is carried on to every phase of performance. And with it a gasoline efficiency that alters all previous standards.

A single ride will explain why this has been the most enthusiastically accepted Hudson ever built.

Any one failing to return with their brick, will leave a hole in the wall, only those bricks returned to be built into the church. A practice of all having a part in the program will be held on Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the church.

The Sunday School will meet at 10:00 a. m. for recording the number present and counting the bricks. The church people will be counted as they come in. The service starts promptly at 10:30 a. m. Visitors are welcome and will be recognized, as a part of the service. Mr. D. D. Jones is superintendent in charge.

ANTICIPATE LARGE ABSENTEE BALLOT

Sixty-six absentee ballots have already been cast by Greene County voters expecting to be away from their home precinct on election day, November 6, according to R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board of elections. The board also has a few more applications for absent voter's ballots.

Mr. Dunkel predicts that because of the intense interest in the presidential race this year the absentee ballot vote in Greene County will probably run as high as 150. Absent voter's ballots may be cast until midnight November 3.

The Little Yellow House

BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. ©1928

READ THIS FIRST: Emmy Milburn, at seventeen, wanted to lift herself from the ordinariness of the little street she lived in, to the heights where she felt she properly belonged. After a party given by her rich cousin, Marianna, she resolved to better herself some day. Meantime she took a business course, paid for by her Grandmother Pentland, and snubbed, as well as she could, Robb, Hollis, the boy down the street, who worked in a mill, and who represented the side she determined never to let herself sink into.

Marianna tells Emmy she is going to marry Jim Baldwin next day, and to keep it secret. Emmy succeeds in getting a stenographic job—her first position—and is immensely pleased that she will receive twenty-two dollars a week. She figures it will only be a little time before she can get an apartment of her own and leave Flower Street forever.

CHAPTER XXVII It was almost seven o'clock now, and along the eastern sky the silver-gray light of the dawn was showing. Against it the roofs of the houses across the street showed sharply black, like houses cut out of black paper. It was a beautiful sight.

But no matter how beautiful the winter dawn was in the sky, it always seemed murky and dirty down in the street itself. Along the narrow sidewalks, covered with slush and churned black mud, came the mill workers in their dark, slouching clothes, with their tin lunch boxes under their arms.

And along with the last of them appeared a figure that she knew. Robb. He was talking and laughing. Emmy could catch the sound of his voice as the wind tossed it up to her for an instant.

"He's just one of them, after all," she thought, watching him throw away his cigarette and disappear into the employees' entrance of the grim-looking old building.

"He's in a better job than the rest of them, and he's good and fine. But that's his life—the mill. It would be my life if I married him. No, no, I must get away from here. She must go on her own way as she was planning to do. She mustn't weaken now."

She slipped into a black broadcloth dress of Marianna's that Mrs. Milburn had made over into an office dress for her. It had a low square neck and above it Emmy's skin was like creamy velvet. The parted waves of her red-gold hair were burnished with hard brushing.

"I am nice looking," said Emmy, bracing herself for the new encounter with life that waited for her that day.

She went down to breakfast, wondering if good looks helped a girl in business or not.

The kitchen of the little house was the warmest and coziest room in it. And there, at one end of the long table under the windows Mrs. Milburn had breakfast.

"I reached a couple of eggs for you," she said as Emmy drained her little glass of orange juice. "I don't want you to get into the habit of rushing out of the house on an empty stomach."

"No, Mother," Emmy's voice was full of absent-mindedness. Her gray eyes were fixed on the grocer's calendar that hung on the wall opposite her.

Four days in February, she was noting. That meant almost ninety dollars before the first of March. It seemed like riches when she thought of it that way. "I can buy a coat on the fifteenth or so," she told herself comfortably, "and by the first of March I'll be able to rent a room for myself somewhere, perhaps. By the second week, anyhow!"

"You're not starting now, are you?" her mother asked in amazement as she got up from the table and picked up the dowdy between-seasons coat that was hung on the back of a chair before the stove to be warmed for her. "Why, Emmy, it's only half past seven! You've a whole hour before you're due at the Parks Building."

"I know," Emmy said, jamming her gray hat down over her eyes; "I know. But I can't get there soon enough! I can't wait to begin!" She began to pull on her galoshes.

"I'll run upstairs and get you a dollar," Mrs. Milburn said. "You'll have to have some money for car fare and hot coffee. I've put you a couple of sandwiches for you."

As Emmy waited for her at the foot of the stairs, she heard her going into the clothes closet. "Praying for me, I suppose," thought the girl impatiently.

She called up the stairs and begged her to hurry down with the dollar bill.

"Well, here goes my chick—out on the mill pond!" Mrs. Milburn said, coming around the turn of the stairs with the money in her hand.

Emmy shook her head. "You're ducking, Mother. I can swim, you'll see!" She fairly snatched the money in her impatience to be gone, and rushed down the street, leaving an unpaired bed and a wad of pink flannel nightgown on the floor of her room upstairs.

Before a week had gone by in the drip-drip of icicles on the window sills and the tick-tock of the office clock on the wall above Emmy's head, she began to feel as if she had been working at Harbison's for years.

How long she made out expensive sheets and reports on the high cost of wood pulp from the Canadian woods. Sometimes she took dictation from Mr. Harbison, a nervous blond young man, who pulled at a sandy moustache while he gave her letters, and never said "Thank you."

"He's the youngest of the three brothers," Miss Ingham, who had the desk next to Emmy's, told her. "I've never seen the oldest one. He stays in New York most of the time. But the other one—Wells Harbison—wax! she'll see him!"

"Why should I wait until I see him?" asked Emmy, curious.

"Well, just wait! You'll see what I mean," Miss Ingham answered cryptically.

She was a small black-eyed girl with short black hair that lay in scallops around her face like the hair painted on a China doll. Every hour or so she took a mirror, a lipstick, and a powder puff from the top drawer of her desk and changed, made up her little heart-shape.

"You'd look wonderful if you'd have your hair shingled," she told Emmy one noon as they walked up Euclid Avenue toward the Colonnade Lunch Room. Emmy bought a cup of coffee there every day to top off the sandwiches that her mother packed for her in the morning.

After she had finished it and Miss Ingham had eaten her salad and reaching bread—thin as she was, she had a horror of fat—the two of them would stroll slowly back to the Parks Building, arm in arm, stopping to exclaim over hats and dresses and furberlows in the shop windows.

he wanted. He announced a trans-Atlantic flight. With little advance notice he arrived in Newfoundland on September 27 and started preparations.

So tiny was the plane MacDonald intended using that many could not believe the serious intent of this ruddy, 33-year-old former naval officer. The plane weighed but 800 pounds. Its wing spread was but twenty-six feet. Its motor could develop only eighty-five horse power. Its cruising range was only about 3,500 miles.

Like Colonel Lindbergh, MacDonald did not install radio into the machine and planned deep reckoning for the selection of a flight course.

The Little Yellow House

By BEATRICE BURTON -- RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSN. © 1928

READ THIS FIRST: Emmy Milburn, at seventeen, wanted to lift herself from the ordinariness of the little street she lived in, to the heights where she felt she properly belonged. After a party given by her rich cousin, Marianna, she resolved to better herself some day. Meantime she took a business course, paid for by her Grandmother Penland, and snubbed, as well as she could, Robb, Hollis, the boy down the street, who worked in a mill, and who represented the life she determined never to let herself sink into.

Marianna tells Emmy she is going to marry Jim Baldwin next day, and to keep it secret.

Emmy succeeds in getting a stenographic job—her first position—and is immensely pleased that she will receive twenty-two dollars a week. She figures it will only be a little time before she can get an apartment of her own and leave Flower Street forever.

CHAPTER XXVII

It was almost seven o'clock now, and along the eastern sky the silver-gray light of the dawn was showing. Against it the roofs of the houses across the street showed sharply black, like houses cut out of black paper. It was a beautiful sight.

But no matter how beautiful the winter dawn was in the sky, it always seemed murky and dirty down in the street itself. Along the sidewalks, covered with slush and churned black mud, came the mill workers in their dark, slouching clothes, with their tin lunch boxes under their arms.

And along with the last of them appeared a figure that she knew—Robb. He was talking and laughing. Emmy could catch the sound of his voice as the wind tossed it up to her for an instant.

"He's just one of them, all right," she thought, watching him throw away his cigarette and disappear into the employees' entrance of the grim-looking old building. "He's in a better job than the rest of them, and he's good and fine. But that's his life—the mill. It would be my life if I married him, and if I stay here I will marry him." No, she must get away from here. She must go on her own way as she was planning to do. She mustn't weaken now.

She slipped into black broadcloth dress of Marianna's that Mrs. Milburn had made over into an office dress for her. It had a low square neck and above it Emmy's skin was like creamy velvet. The parted waves of her red-gold hair were burnished with hard brushing.

Seems they went into conference over in Paris and decided they would be terribly happy at a distance. Serge, I am told, has obeyed mileage orders. Pola resides in greenback luxury in her chateau near Paris.

Whether either will be annoyed with a divorce remains to be read. Pola is the spirit of Cleopatra on the Continent, cinematically speaking, of course. I understand there is any amount of money in ditto banks awaiting her decision to return to the silver sheet. But she is permitting the minutes to tick away and holding her decision until such time as it meets with her pleasure.

For the Negri is a woman of caprice. She began with "Passion" in this country, a quaint beginning as beginnings go. That won her a Famous Players contract and an ing papers arrived next. Everybody signed them except Priscilla, who by this time wondered what the heck. A little later, whilst enjoying the play in the Casino, a pompous person appeared on the scene and more conversation resulted.

Suddenly some one informed Priscilla that in so far as Mexican law was concerned she and Les were married. The ceremony would only be an anti-climax, but the ceremony had to be gone through. By this time, naturally, matters looked powerfully serious. "Where will they be married?" Somebody asked somebody else. It ended with the ceremony taking place in front of the wishing well before the Casino. By now it was dark, a beautiful tropical darkness with love in the air. The mayor of the town came along with a flashlight. He was hailed. While he held the flashlight Priscilla Dean and Leslie Arnold were officially married.

He has met their representatives, talked with them, gotten their point of view, absorbed whatever information they had to impart, and emerged with clear, accurate knowledge of every phase of our national life. COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)
